Dr. Vince Matthews, one of the top experts in the field of geology, is leading two continuing education classes — When Ice Ruled Leadville I and II. Participants will never look at this region's scenic beauty the same way after studying its geological history first-hand. The second class does not require participation in the first.

Dr. Vince Matthews has taught at five different institutions of higher education, holding tenure at two. He was the State Geologist of Colorado and Director of the Colorado Geological Survey. He is Senior Author of the multi-award-winning book Messages in Stone — Colorado’s Colorful Geology and compiler of A Tourist Guide to Colorado Geology. He posts daily at Leadville Geology on Facebook that is followed by people in 44 countries.

GEY-901  WHEN ICE RULED LEADVILLE I  NON CREDIT
Leadville’s spectacular scenery reflects a time when ice covered and formed much of the landscape. It was a time of valleys filled with thousands of feet of ice; of 600-foot-deep lakes forming, then catastrophically emptying in a day. Learn to read the signs of this classic glacial terrain in the field. Generations of geologists all over America have studied Turquoise Lake in their classrooms. Now you can study its marvels first hand. Follow the glacially dammed lake from Malta to Buena Vista. Experience periglacial features such as patterned ground, rock glaciers, and sackungen.
A 1/2 mile of hiking is required, dress appropriately for the hike and the weather. Pack a lunch or bring lunch money.
